The Borders In Us All: New Approaches to Global Disaporic Societies is a collection of scholarly essay. This volume is unique in its approach to historical Diasporas in that it explores some of the cross curenets within Diasporic communties in Africa, Asia, latin American and the United States providing new insight into America's new ethnic majorities. In eighteen chapters the authors examined the historical, political dynamnics, and the language/literariy traditions and the arts and creative expressions of several ethnic and global Diasporic communities.
