180, 180: A Collection of Poems Virgenal Lee Owens

I began writing this poetry book during the fall semester of my junior year of college in 2013. The inspiration came from a number of places, including stories, experiences, and insights from friends, family, and strangers, as well as my own personal life. This book is the amalgamation of a human experience I have found shared with people in my life time and time again. It is inspired by lovers, haters, winners, losers, life, death, mystery, good, evil, surety, confusion, happiness, and pain. I hope that something in the book touches you. I hope that by the completion of your reading, you understand why I wrote it in the first place. I want to thank everyone who has supported me thus far, not just on this poetry journey, as well as the publishing of my first book, but also in my life in general. Thank you to friends, family, colleagues, associates, and mentors. I appreciate everyone who has believed in me and supported me while I figured this thing called life out. There is significance in the title, the artwork, and the order of the poems themselves. I pray the book is worth something for you. I hope you enjoy reading it as much as I enjoyed writing it.
